Re: PS Docket No. 07-114

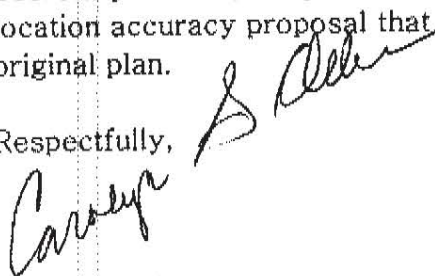

Secretary Marlene Dortch,

I would like to take a minute to express how important the FCC's indoor location accuracy proposal is to the infrastructure of our emergency response system. Presently, an emergency dispatcher is unable to locate many 9-1-1 calls that are made indoors via a cellular device. This causes angst and frustration for emergency personnel, and may determine life or death for the caller themselves.

The FCC's proposal has the capability of saving thousands of lives every year by remedying this dire fault in our emergency response framework. Unfortunately, private interests of some major cell phone companies are trying to prevent this life-saving measure from being enacted. Rather than accept their responsibility to help our emergency responders, they are pushing a plan that irks the FCC's standards - leaving thousands of lives in the balance.

Secretary Dortch, I implore you to back the only legitimate and honorable indoor location accuracy proposal that has been brought to the table. Please support the FCC's original plan.

Respectfully,

Carolyn S. Allen
